

Chords of Grey

an exhibition by

Paul Gallagher

Saturday 24th July - Friday 13th August 2010

'In music there are seven notes in the musical scale. There are of course variations of these notes but ultimately it is these seven definitive points that are the musicians tools. In monochrome photography there are infinite variations of grey in the tonal scale from black to white but once again seven definitive points that can contain visual detail presented by the light we experienced.....'
